The City Council is expected to adopt a 2010 budget by the end of November.

"With this budget, we will make a positive difference in people's lives, just as we have for eight years."

About Roger Turner

Buying or selling a home is one of the most important decisions you will make. You deserve the best representation possible. Roger Turner is an experienced, well educated real estate agent with natural people skills and a proven track record. He is one of the most successful and respected realtors in the area. Born and raised in Seattle, Roger knows all of the city neighborhoods extremely well. He began his career in real estate shortly after graduating from the University of Washington with a degree in Business Administration. He is also a CPA. After over 20 years as a realtor Roger enjoys working with people and has a real interest in homes - how they are built, the different styles, the way they are decorated.

Roger has also earned awards and certificates for top production. Roger credits the Windermere organization as a big part of his success and longevity in the business. "They have a large network of offices through out the area." This is very helpful in getting exposure for a home that is for sale. They also demand the highest level of integrity. It's a great place to work."

Roger is famous for "going the extra mile" in order to help his clients. He currently lives in north Seattle with his wife and two children. "Seattle's always been my home. I grew up in South Seattle near Lake Washington where I often visited Seward Park. Growing up there was a wonderful experience and this area of Seattle has become one of the prime areas for affordable housing. Later I moved to North Seattle to attend the University of Washington where I received my BA in Business Administration with a concentration in marketing and in accounting. After graduation, I found North Seattle to be a well established and pleasant neighborhood.

It was here in North Seattle, in the Maple Leaf community that my wife and I chose to begin our family. We now have a beautiful son, Benjamin Roger, and a wonderful daughter, Marie Katherine. Since the arrival of these two gems, we've been extremely involved in children's activities; members of the Children's Museum, frequent attendees of the Seattle Science Center and the Woodland Park Zoo."

MAPLE LEAF RESERVOIR PROJECT

Project overview and benefits

The Maple Leaf Reservoir Project is part of the Seattle Public Utilities Reservoir Covering Program. Under the Reservoir Covering Program, the City is replacing its open reservoirs with underground structures that will improve the quality and security of our water supply and provide an additional 76 acres of new open space.

Construction for the Maple Leaf Reservoir Project is scheduled to begin in September.

In September, SPU will begin construction for the Maple Leaf Reservoir Covering Project. Crews will first demolish the existing 60 million gallon open reservoir and then construct a buried 60 million gallon reinforced-concrete reservoir in the existing basin.

What can I expect during construction?

Construction will occur Monday – Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Some weekend work will occur.

Potential impacts during construction:

- Noise, dust and vibration, especially during demolition
- Increased truck and oversized vehicle traffic
- Temporary loss of street parking during construction. "No Parking" signs will be clearly posted at the construction site entrance along Roosevelt Way NE between NE 86th St and NE 84th St.

General Construction Schedule

(actual schedule is weather dependent)

- Start Maple Leaf Reservoir Construction Work– mid-September 2009
- Reservoir Demolition – Approximately September 2009 through January 2010
- Reservoir Construction – September 2009 through mid-2012
- Construction Completion – mid-2012
- Construction Sequence
- Beginning in September 2009, the contractor will set up equipment and materials on site.

The contractor will then begin demolition of the existing reservoir. This work is expected to last several months. Construction vehicles will access the site during work hours to deliver necessary equipment and remove soil and concrete from the existing reservoir.

Then, construction of the new reinforced concrete reservoir will begin.

Once the underground reservoir is constructed, SPU will cover the reservoir with drain rock, topsoil and grass. The site will then be turned over to Parks Department. Ultimately, the majority of the fencing along the south, west and east sides will be removed for future open space. SPU's work is expected to be complete by mid-2012.

FESTIVALS AND EVENTS COLOR THE CHARACTER OF SEATTLE'S NEIGHBORHOODS.

SEATTLE — Festivals and events color the character of Seattle's neighborhoods. Community groups planning a neighborhood arts or cultural event in 2010 can apply for funding through the Office of Arts & Cultural Affairs' Neighborhood & Community Arts program.

The funding program helps Seattle's neighborhood art councils and community-based groups produce festivals and events that enhance the visibility of neighborhoods, promote cultural participation, celebrate diversity and build community through arts and culture.

Neighborhood arts councils and community-based groups that have been in existence for at least one year may seek annual support for a recurring festival or event that has a significant arts and cultural component, is open to the public and takes place in Seattle. Applicants are not required to have 501(c) (3) tax-exempt status.

Funded organizations each receive $1,200 to support direct project expenses, including artist fees, marketing and promotional fees, venue and equipment rentals or other production-related expenses. Funds may not be used for fundraising or organizational administrative expenses. Link to the online application at www.seattle.gov/arts.

In 2009, the funding program provided $1,200 each to 37 organizations to support annual public festivals and events.

YOUR CITY, RIGHT NOW: SEATTLE LAUNCHES "CITYLINK" FROM POLICE TO FIRE TO PARKS, CITY DEPARTMENTS DELIVER IMMEDIATE INFORMATION

SEATTLE – Residents have a new, faster way to keep in touch with what's happening in their neighborhood as the city launches "Citylink Seattle," a new Web site and network of news feeds from utilities, parks, police, fire and many other city departments.

"Citylink Seattle takes our city beyond traditional news releases and printed newsletters to delivering faster, more immediate information that keeps you in touch with your city in one convenient place," said Mayor Greg Nickels.

Citylink Seattle offers residents the latest information, such as police and fire activities, events at parks and the Seattle Center, and up-to-the-minute news about traffic and utilities. Eleven city departments are part of the initial launch, each creating news feeds and displaying the latest headlines on their department homepages. All the information from those individual pages is collected and fed immediately into the Citylink Seattle Web site (www.citylink.seattle.gov), where residents can view updates from across the city.

The 11 newsfeeds are:

- Power Lines: News and updates from Seattle City Light
- SPD blotter: News and updates from the Seattle Police Department
- On the Move: Advisories from the Seattle Department of Transportation
- At Your Service: Seattle Public Utilities news and events
- Fire Line: News and updates from the Seattle Fire Department
- Building Connections: Seattle Department of Planning and Development news
- Art Beat: Seattle Arts and Cultural Affairs news and events
- Center Spotlight: Seattle Center news and events
- The Scoop: Seattle Animal Shelter news and events
- Parkways: Seattle Parks and Recreation news and events
- Bottom Line: News and updates from Seattle's Office of Economic Development

Residents can also sign up for RSS feeds and get information sent directly to their phones or mobile devices. In addition, residents can subscribe to real-time information through Twitter and be alerted to the latest Citylink Seattle news from several departments, including Seattle Police (twitter.com/seattlepd), Fire (twitter.com/seattlefire), City Light (twitter.com/seacitylight) and the Seattle Department of Transportation (twitter.com/seattledot).

MAYOR'S BUDGET: PRUDENT AND COMPASSIONATE

SEATTLE – Mayor Greg Nickels today presented his 2010 proposed budget to the City Council. This is his eighth and final proposed budget and reflects the four priorities he established when he took office: public safety, transportation, strong families and healthy communities, and jobs and opportunities for all.

Despite a global economic crisis that resulted in lower revenues from many of the city's funding sources, Nickels' budget adds new patrol officers, continues work on fixing the Mercer Corridor, and spends more on human services than all other cities in Washington combined.

"The good news is that Seattle has not and will not suffer draconian cuts to basic services," said Nickels in his annual budget speech in Council Chambers. "We are strong despite the storm. And I promise you: Seattle will lead the nation to a cleaner, more progressive, more prosperous future."

The latest revenue forecasts project a $72 million revenue shortfall in the general fund's 2009-2010 biennial budget, the result of lower revenue, particularly sales and business taxes. To balance the budget, Nickels proposed cuts of roughly 4.4 percent from the endorsed 2010 budget, or about $41 million.

The proposed budget eliminates approximately 310 positions citywide, and reduces the number of city vehicles. Last month, members of 14 Coalition of City Unions agreed to 10-day unpaid furloughs for 2010, saving an estimated $6.5 million from the General Fund.

The city will also use $25.4 million from the Rainy Day Fund, leaving about $5 million for the future.

Nickels' budget does not raise taxes. In fact, Nickels and two councilmembers proposed repealing the employee hours tax, now pending before Council. Nickels also approved legislation to raise the B&O tax threshold to $100,000 starting in 2010.

The proposed budget assumes an 8.8 percent City Light rate increase on Jan. 1, 2010, which is included in legislation being submitted to Council. The rate increase is driven by lower wholesale energy sales, increasing costs (such as federal licensing), and general inflation. To reduce the size of the increase, Nickels eliminated 68 full-time equivalent City Light positions.

If adopted, City Light's rates would still be lower than in 2002, when Nickels took office. And City Light has dramatically improved its financial situation since the West Coast power crisis in 2000 and 2001:

2002	2008
Rates: 6.30 cents per kWh	Rates: 5.64 cents per kWh
Bond rating: A+ (S & P)	Bond rating: AA- (S & P)
Net Income: -$1.9 million	Net Income: $131.6 million
Metric tons of greenhouse gas emissions offset: 0	Metric tons of greenhouse gas emissions offset: 64,345

Despite budget reductions, City Light is proposing to continue expansion of its conservation programs in 2010. In fact, simple conservation measures can offset the rate increase for many households. For example, an average residential customer can offset the increase by replacing 10 incandescent lights with high-efficiency bulbs or other conservation measures.

Other budget highlights include:

• Adds 20 new patrol officers in 2010, keeping Seattle on track with Nickels' plan to have 154 new officers on the streets by 2012.

• With funding from the voter-approved Fire Facilities and Emergency Response Levy and other city funds, the Fleets and Facilities Department will continue to replace and remodel almost all of Seattle's fire stations. In the 2010 Proposed
